// OVERVIEW

QUALIFICATIONS

39 years of hands-on remedial construction experience

Dennis is the Managing Director of Complete Property Repair, LLC (CPR). CPR provides consultation and an avenue to design services intended to provide solutions to post-construction problems, as well as to avoid post-construction problems in new construction planning. CPR works in conjunction with engineering and architectural firms when design is required or requested. CPR and Dennis McCoy also provide expert witness services. CPR has worked, and currently works, with several large commercial and residential builders to create sound building envelope design. Dennis draws on his background and education in civil building inspection, and his 39 years of hands-on experience in remedial construction.

Dennis is currently providing consultation services for BUILT Exteriors, Inc., a Utah-based company specializing in complete building envelope construction. BUILT's work includes masonry cladding systems such as brick, CMU block, natural stone, and precast stone veneer, as well as metal cladding systems, including metal siding and ACM panel systems. The company also installs composite siding systems and synthetic stucco claddings. Although BUILT focuses primarily on new construction, the company relies on Dennis's extensive experience and expertise to assist with the integration and interface of these various exterior cladding systems. His role includes helping identify and address potential compatibility, sequencing, waterproofing, and transition issues between dissimilar materials and assemblies before they develop into construction defects or building-envelope failures.

Dennis worked as the primary exterior building envelope consultant for Edge Homes, Inc., a Utah company, from 2016 to March 2025. He worked with the in-house architects for Edge in designing and detailing the exteriors on their condominiums and townhomes, and provided third-party oversight and inspections for the same.

Dennis was the Sole Director and CEO of RAM Builders, Inc. from April 1986 to October 2015. In this capacity he oversaw the remedial repairs of failed claddings comprising the various components of the building envelope on over 1,875 single-family homes and over 40 condominium projects in California, Idaho, and Utah, as well as over 450 homes in Texas. He and his company also performed extensive remedial repairs of failed claddings on commercial buildings such as hospitals, hotels, office buildings, and government buildings, and served as subcontractor for new construction stucco and masonry, wood siding/cement board siding, and TPO/EPDM/asphalt composition roofing on many hundreds of new homes and commercial buildings in Utah.

He has been the prime remedial contractor, or consulting contractor, on many hundreds of failed, resilient-surfaced exterior decks, completing this work on more than 40 separate projects. He has also been the prime remedial contractor on many hundreds of cracked concrete foundation walls and concrete footings, both structural and non-structural, in both California and Utah. From 1996 through 2000 he worked with soils engineers in Magna, Utah to regrade and install subsurface and surface drainage systems at 60 homes for a national builder, and was the primary contractor in the repair of failed foundations, concrete flatwork, and consequential damages caused by soil settlement and improper drainage at those homes. He provided similar remedial services on 250 homes/townhomes in California and 11 homes in Texas.

From 1990 through 1996 he performed remedial sub-surface drainage and stucco repair in Escondido, California on 180 homes on a hillside project. From 1988 through 1995 he repaired failed and cracked foundations and replaced missing concrete piers, as well as providing subsurface drainage systems, on 159 townhomes in San Jose, California. In June 1989 he graduated from Chabot College in Hayward, California with an Associate of Arts degree in Construction Inspection. In February 1989 the International Conference of Building Officials certified him as a Certified Building Inspector.

From 1987 through 1990 he completed numerous and varying remedial construction projects in the state of California for Kaufman & Broad, a national builder. He started his own construction business in April 1986. He worked as a superintendent from 1982 to 1986 for Forrest Construction of Fremont, CA, and as a trim carpenter for the same company from 1981 to 1982. From 1975 to 1978 he worked as a carpenter for Doug Beck Construction of Spanish Fork, Utah.
